Jane Austen program marks 200th anniversary of her death

Debra Miller, a Jane Austen re-enactor, will present a program at Greenwood Public Library on Monday, July 17th at 6:30pm. Miller, a resident of Chicago, will bring Jane Austen to life as she speaks about her life, family, and writing career. All ages are invited to attend this free event. Participants should register at www.greenwoodlibrary.us or by calling 317-881-1953.

Jane Austen, known for her classic novels such as Pride and Prejudice and Emma, died on July 18, 1817.
