Program offers book recommendations while supporting local business

Greenwood Public Library will be hosting an event where librarians will discuss upcoming book releases at Oaken Barrel in Greenwood

Greenwood residents looking for new book recommendations have a great opportunity to learn about new titles while supporting a local business. Greenwood Public Library will be hosting Books & Brews, a Book Chat at Oaken Barrel on Thursday, September 14th at 6pm. This is the second in a series of Book Chats, following one at Vino Villa this past May. Each event gives participants the opportunity to try some tasty appetizers from a Greenwood restaurant, while hearing about upcoming new releases from GPL librarians.

“Book chat at Vino Villa was awesome,” commented Kim Beekman, a participant of the Book Chat event this past May, “There was a private room, good food, and wine! It was the perfect setting to learn about new releases coming out this summer. Emily and Susan presented great synopsis with fun facts about each book. Definitely filled my summer reading list! Hope they do it again soon.”

Greenwood librarians created this series as part of the Reading Revolution campaign. “The Reading Revolution is all about a community-wide conversation on books and reading,” stated Emily Ellis, Assistant Director, “and Book Chat was developed as just one of those conversations - to share reading recommendations with the book lovers throughout Greenwood. The fun is getting out and about in the city, highlighting community organizations that support the Library, and talking about books in unexpected places. We hope it becomes a program where attendees not only find their next favorite read but are connected to other enthusiastic readers who can share their own book recommendations and opinions.” Anyone interested in encouraged to register for this free event through GPL’s website.
